architecture unlocks nature

Architecture Unlocks Nature is an international conference taking place on January 24, 25 and 26, 2024 at the Politecnico di Milano. This conference aims to gather contributions from European researchers and Ph.D. candidates interested in exploring how different viewpoints in architecture address the ecological transition.

*What are the roles of Design and Nature today?
How do they engage with one another?
How does ecological transition become a spatial matter?
How are architecture, landscape and urban design contributing to and being influenced by, this change?*
