breve descrizione/ brief description	The exhibition's curators of Following the Fish (winner of the competition to participate in the Eventi Collaterali of the Venice Biennale of Architecture 2023) make a call to action to the students of the Politecnico di Milano. In response to the theme of this year's Biennale, "Africa, laboratory of futures", they propose to work on the reality of Senegalese migrants in Barcelona. Specifically, the Union of Street Vendors, who also created the Top Manta fashion brand. In this political and creative struggle, this movement has re-signified its stigmatised identity as a migrant collective. Through the culture of the project, they have

	constructed counter-hegemonic visions of their own identity and created a system of mutual help alternatives to the official ones. At the same time, they have been able to prefigure more sustainable futures that challenge us to think about architecture in other ways. It will therefore be a workshop that will move between Barcelona and Venice. In collaboration with the Top Manta collective, students from different European schools will meet for five days at the Escola Tècnica Superior d'Arquitectura del Vallès. The workshop will continue for five days in July at the Eventi Collaterali exhibition in Venice and within the Biennale Sessions programme. Lectures, seminars, design and hands on activities will be part of the training sessions, in presence and online, implemented by the International team of professors involved. The final results will become temporary part of the exhibition project. From shared struggles such 1) as anti-racism, 2) non-exploitation, 3) the right to the city, 4) food sustainability, 5) feminism, we will explore new architectural typologies hand in hand with a highly creative migrant community. Whether in a) gastronomic space, b) housing, or c) neighbourhood facilities, either already part of the migratory city paths or completely anew. Adaptive reuse and strategic sustainable active-actions and policy, with an inclusive social vision, are the driving forces of the workshop. We want to work hand in hand with students of architecture, urban planning and design with the collectives promoting real social changes. We want to work with public administrations and local stakeholders, starting from existing infrastructures, with the hope that these proposals can become a reality in the future. The workshop is a vindication of the pre-figurative capacity of schools of architecture, urban planning or design. Workshop Agenda  23 January: 1 day online workshop presentation and team introduction.  30 Gennaio - 3 February: Workshop activity at ETSAV, Barcelona, with seminars, lectures and design (activities run by the group of professors involved + external experts).  March-May: 1 day a month (to be set) online workshop: presentations and tutorials.  26-30 June: Workshop activity at Biennale di Architettura di Venezia and at Catalan space in Venice: finalizing and packaging the work for the final exhibition and presentation (activities run by the group of professors involved + external experts).
